ALDRICH'S PATENT Water Elevator

The illustration shows a woman in a long dress and a wide-brimmed hat. She is standing next to a mechanical device that looks like a small, ornate water pump or elevator. She has her hand on a lever or handle of the device. The device has a small roof-like top and a cylindrical body. The entire advertisement is in a vintage, slightly grainy style with bold, serif typography.

A PATENT coming in more good and less bad qualities than any other fixture in use for home use. Does it fail to keep its beauty, or any any one draws now? Use it. We risk so easily that it will "light years" older can draw it with it. It is a pride; it leaves nothing in the water to injure it does not freeze; it is simple; it is not likely to get out of order. The bucks have no value and supplies itself. You have, our well all open or closed at need. And it is just as easy to use as a very many new who value pure water for family use.
